DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 15 objected to because of the following informalities: System claim 15 refers back to claim 14 as method claim. The Examiner interprets it as a system claim. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claim 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being unpatentable by Hutchinson et al., U.S. Pub No. 2005/0102188 (reference A in attached PTO-892).
4. As per claim 1, Hutchinson et al. teach a method of providing underwriting and/or servicing of an financial account, comprising the steps of:

receiving account application information including a bank account information

(see Fig. 7; 8A-D; Fig. 15, step 270-274);

depositing at least one deposit amount to the bank account corresponding to the received bank account information, receiving a deposit verification amount, comparing the received deposit verification amount with the deposited at least one deposit amount (see Fig. 10A, Credit Activity Summary (Payments $898.33); Fig. 10B, 634 (Payment Received and Funding Received); Fig. 10C; where funds are transferred from bank account (see paragraph [0048]); and generating a financial account corresponding to the received account application information (see Fig. 8E-G; Fig. 15, step 265), where the financial account is electronically linked to the bank account (see paragraph [0011] and [0048]).

5. As per claim 2, Hutchison et al. teach claim 1 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method including the step of receiving a periodic debit transaction amount (see paragraph [0048]; where financial (virtual) account uses bank electronic fund transfer using Automated Clearing House (ACH) standard; Examiner notes ACH allows periodic debit transaction amount).

6. As per claim 3, Hutchison et al. teach claim 2 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method wherein the periodic debit transaction amount is configured to be periodically debited from the bank account electronically to the financial account (see paragraph [0080] and claim 2).

7. As per claim 4, Hutchison et al. teach claim 3 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method wherein the periodic debit transaction is performed at 30 day interval (see paragraph [0048]; where ACH allows debit transaction for any specific period of interval).

Art Unit: 3691

8. As per claim 5, Hutchison et al. teach claim 2 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method wherein the periodic debit transaction amount includes one of a full balance of the financial account, a minimum payment amount of the financial account, and a minimum payment amount of the financial account plus a predetermined payment amount (see Fig. 10A-10C).

9. As per claim 6, Hutchison et al. teach claim 1 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method including the step of performing credit verification based on the received account application information (see Fig. 16, steps 285-289).

10. As per claim 7, Hutchison et al. teach claim 6 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method wherein the step of performing credit verification includes the steps of:

transmitting the account application information to a credit bureau (see Fig. 16, Fig. 22); and receiving a credit history information corresponding to said transmitted account application information (see Fig. 21).

11. As per claim 8, Hutchison et al. teach claim 7 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method wherein the credit history information includes a numeric representation of the account application information (see Fig. 16, steps 286 and 287).

Art Unit: 3691

12. As per claim 9, Hutchison et al. teach claim 1 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method wherein the financial account is a credit card account (see Fig. 7; 8E).

13. As per claim 10, Hutchison et al. teach claim 1 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method including the step of generating an financial account default notification when the balance amount of the linked bank account falls below a predetermined minimum level (see paragraph [0130]; where standard late payment processing, such as late notices, finance charges, etc are performed if buyer do not pay as agreed).

14. As per claim 11, Hutchison et al. teach claim 10 as described above. Hutchison further teach the method including the step of transmitting said financial account default notification (see paragraph [0130]; where default notification include charging interest, late notices or finance charges).

15. As per claim 12, Hutchison et al. teach a system for providing underwriting and/or servicing of an financial account, comprising:

a data network (see Fig. 2);

a user terminal operatively coupled to said data network configured to transmit and receive data therefrom (see Fig. 2, Buyer (50));

a server terminal operatively coupled to said data network (see Fig. 2; Seller Server (51)), said server terminal further configured to:

receive account application information including a bank account information from said user terminal (Fig. 2; Fig. 7, steps 100-104);

deposit at least one deposit amount to the bank account corresponding to the received bank account information; receive receiving a deposit verification amount from said user terminal; compare the received deposit verification amount with the deposited at least one deposit amount (see 10A-10C; paragraph [0048] and [0130]); and generate a financial account corresponding to the received account application information (see Fig. 8E-G; Fig. 15, step 265), where the financial account is electronically linked to the bank account (see paragraph [0011] and [0048]).

16. As per claim 13, Hutchison et al. teach claim 12 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the server terminal is further configured to receive a periodic debit transaction amount from the user terminal (see paragraph [0048]; where financial (virtual) account uses bank electronic fund transfer using ACH standard; Examiner notes ACH allows periodic debit transaction amount).

17. As per claim 14, Hutchison et al. teach claim 13 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the server terminal is configured to periodically debited said periodic debit transaction amount from the linked bank account electronically to the financial account (see paragraph [0080] and claim 13 above).

18. As per claim 15, Hutchison et al. teach claim 14 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the periodic debit transaction is performed at 30 day interval (see paragraph [0048]; where ACH allows debit transaction any specific period).

19. As per claim 16, Hutchison et al. teach claim 13 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the periodic debit transaction amount includes one of a full balance of the financial account, a minimum payment amount of the financial account, and a minimum payment amount of the financial account plus a predetermined payment amount (see Fig. 10A-10C).

20. As per claim 17, Hutchison et al. teach claim 12 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the server terminal is further configured to:

transmitting the account application information to a credit bureau (see Fig. 16, Fig. 22); and receiving a credit history information corresponding to said transmitted account application information (see Fig. 21).

21. As per claim 18, Hutchison et al. teach claim 12 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the financial account is a credit card account (see Fig. 7; 8E).

22. As per claim 19, Hutchison et al. teach claim 12 as described above. Hutchison further teach the system wherein the server terminal is configured to:

generate a financial account default notification when the balance amount of the linked bank account falls below a predetermined minimum level (see Fig. 2; paragraph [0130]; where financial institution (59) will generate default notification which include late notices, finance charges); and transmit said account default notification to the user terminal (see Fig. 2; paragraph [0130]; where financial institution (59) issues late notices or levy finance charge to user through data network).

23. As per claim 20, Hutchison et al. teach a program storage device readable by a machine, tangibly embodying a program of instructions executable by the machine to perform a method of providing underwriting and/or servicing of an financial account (see Fig. 2; paragraph [0055]), comprising the steps of:

receiving account application information including a bank account information (Fig. 2; Fig. 7, steps 100-104);

depositing at least one deposit amount to the bank account corresponding to the received bank account information; receiving a deposit verification amount; comparing the received deposit verification amount with the deposited at least one deposit amount (see 10A-10C; paragraph [0048] and [0130]); and generate a financial account corresponding to the received account application information (see Fig. 8E-G; Fig. 15, step 265), where the financial account is electronically linked to the bank account (see paragraph [0011] and [0048]).

Conclusion

24. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosures. The following are pertinent to current invention, though not relied upon:
